FACT SHEET

Master of Fine Arts in Acting

Major: Acting, with optional concentrations (General Concentration or Directing Concentration)

Program Description

The primary aim of the MFA in Acting degree program is to prepare actors to enter the marketplace and compete as professional actors. As a terminal degree, it is also preparatory for a teaching career in higher education. It encompasses a range of performance-related course work including: acting for the stage and screen, acting Shakespeare, acting in periods and styles, vocal production for the actor, dialects, the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA), research and aesthetics, movement for the actor, auditioning and the business of acting, and stage combat. MFA actors have multiple opportunities to apply skills achieved in the classroom to Regent Theatre productions in both the Mainstage and Secondstage theatre seasons. Additionally, MFA Actors are encouraged to participate in the numerous student film projects produced each semester under the guidance of faculty in the Department of Cinema and Television.

The MFA in Acting culminates in a Thesis/Creative Project (typically the performance of an assigned role) and a Showcase Production of scenes and monologues presented for industry personnel in New York City. Though the occasional course may have a distance option, the course of study overwhelmingly consists of performance-oriented coursework that can only be taken on-campus. Admission and continuance in the degree program is by audition and invitation of the performance faculty.

Leaders to Change the World! It is the mission of the Department of Theatre Arts to educate and train undergraduate and graduate students to incisively examine and effectively communicate, through intellectual analysis and the realization of live theatrical performance, the great truths of the human condition as perceived through the lens of a Christian worldview. The department seeks to develop artists of excellence who will function with moral and spiritual integrity offering redemptive messages creatively and thoughtfully expressed through the theatre arts.

The MFA in Acting Program is designed to produce professionals prepared to enter the academy and teach at the college/university level and/or compete in the professional theatre and cinema industries via the following strategies:

- A focused cohort model consisting of six consecutive semesters of study. A 60 credit-hour degree program.
- A strong integration of theory and technique in practice.
- A faculty offering a solid and accepted range of current methodologies and technique.

- A rigorous audition and interview process insuring all incoming MFA in Acting students have been examined and exhibit a proven level of talent and technique; thus all MFA level acting courses will contain students with proven potential to succeed in the profession.
- A culminating experience that challenges the student to apply all of the knowledge and skill sets acquired during the student's course of study.

Program Requirements

- Audition and Interview: Students seeking entrance into the MFA program must audition and interview. The Department of Theatre Arts holds MFA auditions during the months of January, February, and March at venues across the country. The audition schedule is published each fall on the departmental webpage. Videotaped auditions are accepted, but it is highly recommended that prospective students attend one of the national audition sites or on-site auditions at the university.
- Practicum in Theatre Production Requirements: The student is required to register for THE 781 Practicum in Theatre Production four (4) times during their course of study. THE 781 requires the student to serve on a mainstage production running crew. However, MFA students may register for the zero (0) credit hour option if they do not wish to earn academic credit for the practicum experience. If they choose to earn credit, the course may be repeated up to three times for a total of three (3) credit hours of elective.
- Juries and Exit Interviews: At the conclusion of the spring semester, each student admitted to the program is required to participate in juries, during which the student presents audition pieces that should reflect progress toward mastery of degree outcomes. Follow juries, each student has a private exit interview with the performance faculty, at which time progress will be discussed in detail. Continuation in the program is by invitation.
- General Knowledge Proficiency Exam: All students pursuing the MFA in Acting must pass the Theatre Arts General Knowledge Proficiency Exam within their first two semesters of residency. The exam is offered four times during the academic year (twice each semester). All incoming MFA students are automatically registered for the first exam date, typically the first Friday of the fall term. If the student does not pass the exam the first time, he/she is automatically registered for the next exam date. This process continues until the student either passes the exam or reaches the end of his/her first year in the program without a passing score. A score of 70% or higher is considered passing. Failing to pass the exam within the first two semesters of residency will constitute grounds for dismissal from the program or being assigned to a course of undergraduate level studies in theatre history. The course of action following a failed exam will be determined by the theatre faculty. Exam dates are published annually in the Departmental Handbook which is available on the department's website. The website also contains a study guide for the exam.

- Optional Concentrations: The MFA degree offers two distinct concentrations. The first is a General Concentration which allows students to choose nine (9) hours of elective coursework in addition to the 51 hours of required courses. The second is a Directing Concentration which allows students to take nine (9) hours of directing-related coursework in directing to supplement the required core of 51 hours. All students accepted into the MFA Acting Program initially matriculate into the General Concentration. Once accepted, students exhibiting a strong interest (and proven ability) in directing may apply for a limited number of positions in the Directing Concentration.
