Training Sessions

Participants must attend both Prep Workshop sessions. The interactive workshop will focus on the three types of LSAT multiple-choice questions. Additional components include sessions on the LSAT writing section, on legal ethics and education from a Christian perspective, and on the process of applying to law school. Instructors include law school student scholars and the Director of the Law School Academic Success Program.

The LSAT is composed of five 35-minute multiple-choice sections and one 30-minute writing section. The multiple-choice sections are broken down as follows: one Reading Comprehension, one Analytical Reasoning, two Logical Reasoning, and one Experimental. (The Experimental questions will be like those of one of the previously mentioned sections.)

Logical Reasoning

The Logical Reasoning section of the LSAT tests your ability to deconstruct an argument. The focus of these sessions of the Prep workshop will be on how to analyze a Logical Reasoning question and identify assumptions and/or fallacies in each argument presented. At the end of the sessions, you should be well-equipped to analyze and answer Logical Reasoning questions.

Analytical Reasoning (Logic Games)

This section of the LSAT measures your ability to understand a system of relationships and reach conclusions about those relationships. These sessions of the Prep workshop will provide the study skills you need to attack the Analytical Reasoning section. You will learn how to recognize the three types of Logic Games and work through them efficiently.

Reading Comprehension

The Reading Comprehension questions on the LSAT are designed to test your ability to understand complex passages and make connections between the different parts of those passages. The questions are aimed at testing your ability to “read between the lines,” as you will be required to do in reading legal cases. This session of the Prep workshop will focus on teaching the skills necessary to read critically and accurately under time pressure.
