This issue of the International Journal of Leadership Studies continues our diverse international offerings covering leadership in the contexts of political leadership in Israel, strategic leadership in Africa, full-time and alternative work arrangements in Turkey, leader-follower relationships and executive development in the United States, and leadership preferences of employees in Lebanon. The diversity of the research presented by our authors offers all of us an opportunity to develop global perspectives on the role of leaders and followers in organizations. Our authors continue to bless us with excellent material, and we continue to work hand-in-hand with authors to present interesting, educational, and professional research

Prospective authors should take note that the IJLS now has over 2,000 subscribers, receiving our issues free of charge via the Internet. We continue to seek new manuscripts, so bring them on!

I again want to thank the members of our editorial board and reviewers for their continued help and support. If you are interested and willing to review for IJLS, or if you wish to nominate reviewers, please contact us at IJLS@regent.edu. Thanks also for the continuing work of our managing editor, Myra Dingman, and her production colleagues.
