The Department of Theatre Arts is committed to a tradition of excellence.

Regent University, the nation's premiere Christian university, has a proven track record of excellence in the area of communication and the arts with numerous alumni working as screenwriters, directors, producers, journalists and actors.

Over the past five years we have:

• Moved into a state-of-the-art facility
• Increased student enrollment in the Theatre Arts by 475%
• Added new degree tracks with emphasis in theatre ministry and professional actor training
• Created a successful summer theatre camp program targeted to children ages 12-18 that is developed and managed by current theatre students and recent alumni

As we continue to develop Regent’s theatre arts program, we plan to maintain our current level of excellence and strive to offer additional opportunities for our growing student body.

In order to move to the next level, we need your help. Please consider making a donation to the Theatre Department’s Annual Fund Campaign. By partnering with us, you will support redemptive theatre in Hampton Roads and aspiring Christian artists who wish to make a positive impact on the arts.

You too can make a profound difference in the lives of our students.

“The mission trip to Malta was an awesome experience that allowed us to apply, in a practical way, what we have been learning at Regent.”
– Liz Taylor, Class of 2008

Regent University Theatre has been providing quality productions and thoroughly entertaining performances season after season.
Ticket sales, special events and donations only account for 25% of the theatre’s annual operating costs.

People are talking about Regent University Theatre.

“Regent University’s production of An Inspector Calls reaffirms the ability of this school’s young performers to produce genuinely worthwhile theater.”

– The Virginian-Pilot

“It is a group that attests to the efficiency of the students’ training, their talent and the artistic asset they represent in this area.”

– Portfolio Weekly

“Regent’s MFA Acting program challenged me to grow, thanks largely to its dedicated professors. Their areas of expertise prepare students for the professional worlds of theatre and film.”

– Dan Roberts, Class of 2007
